

Midnight Voices Index To Year 1 Postings

This offering indexes messages sent to Midnight Voices during its first year of being and has used Steve's weekly digests as its basis. You can find (and download) the full text of these messages in the Smash Flops members' area.

Headings : are in bold type.

Subheadings : are capitalised subsubheadings : are all lower case except where proper names are involved.

What would normally be page references identify the message tag. Thus:

Dreams Of Fair Women, First Performance of 328

refers to MV328. But that particular message has multiple subjects. So...

Dreams Of Fair Women, First Performance of 328.7

is what actually appears, identifying paragraph 7 within that message as the target (text repeated from previous messages is ignored). A message reference such as this:

Cottonmouth, Theme 1331(ult)

means that the message is probably a long one and that the target paragraph is the last in the message 1331(1ult) indicates the penultimate paragraph, and so on. There are other variations on this which conform to a message's own arrangement but they should be self explanatory once you have the relevant MV message on screen.

The index is loaded with cross-references which should make finding correct and related headings easier. If you're a student of indexes (yawn!) you'll notice that I get muddled at times - I can think straightaway of the subheadings under Music Industry, for example - where I'm not sure of the subject myself and haven't gleaned enough from the messages to make intelligent choices. If you would like to give me any feedback which would improve the index, I'll be only too glad to have it.

Right. On to Year Two!
